

deliberative currents, and information about those deliberative mechanisms which seem the most promising.

2010

Gauvin, F.-P. (2010). Deliberative processes and knowledge translation. Montréal, Québec: National Collaborating Centre for Healthy Public Policy. Retrieved from: http://www.ncchpp.ca/130/Publications.ccnpps?id_article=326

This fact sheet focuses on how deliberative processes can link practitioners, researchers and others for improving the use of knowledge in practice. Two concrete examples are also given to illustrate this discussion.

Gauvin, F.-P. (2010). Evaluating deliberative processes. Montréal, Québec: National Collaborating Centre for Healthy Public Policy. Retrieved from: http://www.ncchpp.ca/130/Publications.ccnpps?id_article=569

The purpose of this fact sheet is to introduce public health practitioners to the evaluation of deliberative processes, specifically: Why should we evaluate deliberative processes? What should be the focus of an evaluation? What are the different evaluative approaches? and What contextual factors matter when evaluating deliberative processes? Finally, the fact sheet presents three frameworks that could be relevant to supporting more effective evaluative practices.

2009

Gauvin, F.-P. (2009). What is a deliberative process? Montréal, Québec: National Collaborating Centre for Healthy Public Policy. Retrieved from: http://www.ncchpp.ca/130/Publications.ccnpps?id_article=283

This fact sheet is an introduction to deliberative processes. It offers a definition of “deliberation” and “deliberative process”. It also gives a brief overview of two major approaches to deliberation as well as a few concrete examples.

Update: November 2014

All of these publications are available on the NCCHPP website:

<http://www.ncchpp.ca/130/publications.ccnpps>

Ces publications sont également disponibles en français :

<http://www.ccnpps.ca/117/Publications.ccnpps>

The National Collaborating Centre for Healthy Public Policy (NCCHPP) seeks to increase the expertise of public health actors across Canada in healthy public policy through the development, sharing and use of knowledge.

The NCCHPP is one of six centres financed by the Public Health Agency of Canada. The six centres form a network across Canada, each hosted by a different institution and each focusing on a specific topic linked to public health. In addition to the Centres' individual contributions, the network of Collaborating Centres provides focal points for the exchange and common production of knowledge relating to these topics. The National Collaborating Centre for Healthy Public Policy is hosted by the Institut national de santé publique du Québec (INSPQ), a leading centre in public health in Canada.

Production of this document has been made possible through a financial contribution from the Public Health Agency of Canada through funding for the National Collaborating Centre for Healthy Public Policy (NCCHPP). The views expressed herein do not necessarily represent the views of the Public Health Agency of Canada.

